“Inspired by Sable Island” – Post-Secondary Award 2025

Friends of Sable Island Society, in partnership with Parks Canada, is offering $500 and a day-trip to Sable Island National Park Reserve to promote learning and awareness of Canada’s 43rd National Park Reserve. This award is available to students who have completed at least one year of post-secondary education and are returning to studies in the fall of 2025.

Sable Island National Park Reserve

Sable Island National Park Reserve is a 40-kilometre stretch of sand located approximately 290 kilometres southeast of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. It is home to many species of animals, sea life, birds and plants, including approximately 500 wild horses, which were introduced sometime shortly after 1738. Many birds, including small numbers of the threatened Roseate Tern, live on the island. It is also the only known breeding ground of the rare Ipswich Sparrow. Sable Island is the largest congregation of breeding Grey Seals and home to a small population of Harbour Seals. More recent discoveries include the endemic Sable Island Sweat Bee.

There has been a continuous human presence on Sable Island since 1801 when the colonial government founded a lifesaving establishment to reduce the loss of life and cargo from the frequent shipwrecks on and near Sable’s shores. In spite of having earned the title “Graveyard of the Atlantic”, the island has been an inspiration to artists of all disciplines – from those who have been fortunate to visit in person to those who feel connected to it from afar.
